Do You Feel Insignificant?

July 1, 2021 – Tampa, FL - Have you ever felt insignificant? Do you wonder if you make a difference in this world? Many people will spend hours, weeks, months, sometimes years studying many different things like trigonometry, algebra, the history of a past civilization and more. We invest our time in perfecting our hobbies or reading a book for our book club and when it is time to discuss the book, most members are more interested in talking about anything but the book!

What do we all really want in our lives? I would venture to say we all would like to be recognized for our achievements. Yet, when we do accomplish some form of success, we don't share the news. Often, we do not even post it on our social media or website, send out a press release or news announcement. Why? What if we spent more time learning subjects that will assist us in perfecting/fine tuning our business lives?

Many of us do not like to show-off. As a result, many people give up on things they would like to do and are unhappy.

We take so much time creating our solutions and want to be known as the go-to person or expert in our field, yet we are afraid to let the world know about it! Be the person who has the information and the answers. Value what you are reading, listening to, watching. Then, ask yourself, "Is this the best use of my time?"

I find that making a list of mastermind groups, memberships in professional organizations, affiliate partners, vendors you work with, mentors, books you have read, charities you support, volunteer positions, physical activities, courses, networks you participate in is a great benefit. You will be amazed, as you examine your lists, as to how much work you have done!

It's time to make a plan to do what you love and love what you do. Then, execute your plan, one step at a time. Before you know it, you will be living the life of your dreams and making a huge impact and difference in this world!
