Do You Want To Be Outrageous!

Tampa, FL (October 10, 2022) – Do you want to do something that has never been done before? So many answer Yes! However, most people don't want to work over 40 hours a week, even if they get paid overtime.

Rarely will you be initially compensated to do something never done before and it requires a lot of your time. If you do something that has never been done before, you must spend a lot of time, energy, and money without any guarantee you will ever get return on your investment. This is the primary reason many people continue to do what they have always been doing - they know what to expect - they work 40 hours; they get paid. They work Monday – Friday, no weekends, they take their vacation time, and get paid for personal days off, receive benefits, etc.

However, to do something that has never been done before, you must do something you have never done before!

You may need a new type of expertise to create this new thing that has never been done before. Would you spend the next five years educating yourself before/after work to earn this new type of expertise? Would you quit your job and work 12 hours a day, six days a week to earn your certification and gain knowledge in half the time? What if several new areas of expertise are needed to do something that has never done before? Would you take two or three specific educational courses and spend the next 7 1/2 years working six days a week, 12 hours a day?

What if there is an easier way to do something that has never been done before? Would you want to know about it? If yes read on:

- Write down your ideas. Review your ideas, review your ideas many times, make tweaks to gain clarity.
- Create a master plan, a blueprint, a step-by-step plan. Consider creating a type of how-to manual.
- Start with the end-result in mind. Write your plan backwards - you must know what you want first, then create a path backwards to end up there.
- When you find new or additional areas of expertise needed to implement your idea, consider this before you sign up for the classes and spend the next five years acquiring that area of expertise. Consider hiring an expert!

Be sure to check out the expert's education, experience, level of expertise, then contact the expert directly to see if they are a good candidate for your project. You may need to interview several experts before finding the right one for your project. They might not be as excited about your project as you are. Remember, this is your idea and you have been contemplating it. Most things that have never been done before sound crazy to the world or they would have been done by now! Concentrate on hiring a team with the education, experience, and expertise you need to move your idea forward.
