In the year 586 BC, Jews were displaced from their land and sent into captivity to Babylon by the Babylonian king Nebuchadnezzar after he destroyed their homes and temple and the kingdom in Jerusalem.

A few years later, Cyrus the Great, the emperor of Persia, conquered Babylonia and freed the Jews. He not only facilitated the return of the Jews to their homeland but also ordered the rebuilding of their home and their temple in Jerusalem.

Tonight, Israel is compensating (Rewarding) Iran, and Iranians could not be happier. Tonight, Many Iranians are out in the street hugging and congratulating each other with the hope of an end to the brutal subjugation of their people by the Arab Shiite clergy.

Tonight, Israel's massive airstrike attack has sent many of the ruthless commanders of various armed forces to meet their maker. Among them:

Gen. Hossein Salami: the Much-feared head of the Revolutionary Guard.

Gen. Amir Ali Hajizadeh: Head of the Revolutionary Guard Missile Program.

Gen. Mohammad Bagheri: Chief of Staff of Armed Forces.

Ali Shamkhani, a top military and nuclear advisor, was a key figure in these fields.

There is a high hope that Iranians will once again experience freedom and live in peace and harmony alongside their Christians, Jews, Baha'is, and Zoroastrians.

Three thousand years ago, jews accorded Cyrus the Great a degree of high respect that no other non-Jewish ruler enjoyed. Iranians of today will certainly erect a tall monument to Israeli Prime Minister Netanyahu in the middle of Tehran.

As Cyrus the Great played a crucial role in Jewish history, as documented in the Hebrew Bible, and is revered as a hero, tonight's Israeli PM, Netanyahu, will go down in Iranian history as a hero with a remarkable achievement.
