

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

News Makers Club

A new global professional community for journalists, media professionals, commentators, editors, broadcasters, podcasters, and digital publishers.

News Makers Club has launched as a new international organization designed to support media professionals across traditional and emerging platforms. Based in Greensboro, North Carolina, the organization aims to strengthen journalism, promote press freedom, encourage ethical reporting, and foster a more connected global media community.

"Today's journalists need more than reporting ability alone — they also need credibility, visibility, digital publishing knowledge, and a strong professional network. News Makers Club is being created to help meet those needs."

PLANNED INITIATIVES

- Professional Development. Seminars, online workshops, and educational programming tailored to the modern media landscape.
- Recognition & Credentials. Press credentials, media recognition programs, and opportunities to strengthen professional standing.
- Networking & Community. Conferences, gatherings, and collaborative forums for journalists and communicators worldwide.
- Media Resources. Support for newsrooms, podcasts, digital publishers, and evolving communications platforms.
- Ethics & Standards. Ongoing discussion around responsible reporting, credibility, and media integrity.
- Advocacy & Career Growth. Press freedom initiatives, career support, and opportunities for long-term professional advancement.

News Makers Club is intended to serve as a central gathering place where journalists, commentators, subject-matter experts, and public affairs professionals can exchange ideas, build relationships, and collaborate on the major issues shaping media and public communication today.

The organization welcomes participants from traditional media, independent journalism, online publishing, broadcasting, podcasting, newsletters, streaming media, and other emerging communications channels. Additional details about membership opportunities, programs, and launch activities are expected to be announced in the coming months.
